Attention: Mr. Randy Harrold

Dear Sir:

Disposal of Toxic Wastes for Seattle City Light

I have reviewed the disposal agreement draft which you sent on August 15, 1980 and am impressed with the detail contained therein.

However, after review of both documents, yours and ours, I feel we should be able to simplify the content of the contractual agreement to highlight the facts without a lot of legal verbiage. My concept of the agreement would include the following provisions:

1. We will pack our PCBs and other toxic waste items according to EPA/DOT regulations. We will consult you on any matters which are questionable.
2. When we have a load packed, we will call you for an inspection. Any items found by your representative to be unacceptable for transport and/or disposal, will be corrected at our facility prior to transport.
3. After the load is accepted by your representative, you may schedule your truck or a truck belonging to a certified commercial carrier to pick up the load. We request a workday's notice prior to the arrival of the truck. City Light will load the truck under the direction of the driver.
4. Chem-Security Systems, Inc. chemical transportation manifests will be originated by our Salvage Unit for all items in the load and signed by that Unit's Chief Warehouser.
5. The truck driver will complete all manifests for the load in the section designated for the transporter and give the last copy of each manifest to our Chief Warehouser. The manifests will accompany the load to the disposal site.

6. The disposal site will complete the manifest, give a copy to the driver of the transport vehicle and return the original to the following address accompanied by a detailed invoice of all charges including transportation.

City Light Department
1015 - Third Avenue
Seattle, WA 98104
Attention: Chief Warehouse - Salvage
South Service Center - A

7. Upon receipt of your invoice and a copy of the completed chemical transportation manifest, they will be reviewed for completeness and processed for payment.

Since your firm is presently the only source of this type of service available to us at this time, we will proceed to order from you on a load by load basis.

Very truly yours,

A. A. Mandapat
Materials Manager
